- Can actively use the online marketing tools, e.g. create their own blogs, develop online marketing campaigns, carry out online marketing research, etc.

Course content

The course consists of 5 modules:

1. The journey. How do consumers develop from learning about brands, to trying them, to becoming brand advocates? How does this brand equity cycle tie into traditional brand strategy methodology and established theory? What can marketers do to facilitate this journey?
2. The searchers. How can investing in searchable online content engage prospects and drive sales? What is content and what makes it viral? How is search effecting consumer behavior? How are marketers adapting?
3. The socializers. How can interacting with prospects and customers on social platforms drive business growth? What are the rules of engagement? How is peer-to-peer connectivity effecting consumer behavior? How are marketers adapting?
4. The seduced. How does paid advertising fit into the picture online? Is it even necessary anymore? Has the idea of "permission marketing" panned out? Has the role of ad agencies changed? Can digital technology transform advertising from a public nuisance to a service?
5. The vigilant. Has the digital revolution created new ethical considerations for marketers? How does the internet make both brands and the public vulnerable and how can they protect themselves? How is this effecting consumer behavior? How are marketers adapting?

Course design

Teaching methods: instruction will take place through traditional lectures, workshops and seminars in teams. The specially designed on-line platform will be used by all class participants, which will also reflect all course activities.
