Course content
The course studies the development of society in terms of its economic, cultural, political and social aspects from the Middle Ages to the present day. The relationships between different types of state, organisation, ethnic group, class and gender are examined. Theories and methods in historical research are discussed and various types of sources are analysed. The course also discusses the ways in which history is used in society.

The course consists of the following sub-courses:
1. A Century of Catastrophes, 6 credits,
2. Rival Civilisations, 9 credits,
3. Global Economy, Governments and Revolutions, 7.5 credits,
4. Industry and Empires, 7.5 credits.

Course design
The course is offered primarily as a distance course and makes use of interactive information technology. It presupposes that students who enrol on the course understand these conditions and have access to a computer with internet connections. Further information is available from the institution regarding technical requirements. Participation in introductory lectures and seminars is compulsory.

Assessment
Examinations take the form of internet based assessed assignments.
