Course content

The course studies the development of society in terms of its economic, cultural, political and social aspects within selected areas. The relationships between different types of state, organisation, ethnic group, class and gender are examined. Theories and methods in historical research are discussed and various types of sources are analysed. The course also discusses the ways in which history is used in society. The course is completed by the students writing a short scholarly essay. In doing this, the students apply the methodological tools and abilities of interpretation which they have acquired in their two terms of studying History. The in-depth thematic studies constitute a number of elective alternatives.

The course consists of the following sub-courses:

1. Thematic In-depth Course, 7.5 credits,
2. Thematic In-depth Course, 7.5 credits,
3. Scholarly Study in History, 7.5 credits,
4. Essay Course, 7.5 credits.

Course design

Teaching consists primarily of lectures, but also includes group exercises and seminars. Participation in the group exercises and seminars is compulsory.

Assessment

Sub-courses 1-3 are examined in part by continuous assessment and in part by a written take-home examination. Sub-course 4 is examined through the composition and discussion of an essay at a compulsory seminar.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.
