- communicate knowledge and research results of historical osteology in an informative way
- apply basic methodology of archaeological investigations

Judgement and approach

- consider theoretical, methodological and ethical issues in their studies, research and professional life
- take a position on and assess the role of historical osteology in society
- provide perspectives on issues of gender, ethnicity and diversity

Course content

The course consists of three modules aiming to provide students with a deeper understanding of the entire research process of historical osteology. One module presents a theoretical, methodological and ethical foundation for research. The degree project consists of independent processing of an issue in historical osteology. A third, practically oriented, component focuses on methods of archaeological investigations.

The course consists of the following modules:

1. Theory, Method and Ethics, 5 credits,
2. Degree Project, 15 credits,
3. Archaeology in Practice, 10 credits.

For practical reasons, the courses may be taught in a different order.

Course design

The teaching consists of fieldwork, group exercises, lectures, seminars and individual supervision of the degree project. Seminars (approximately 5-10), fieldwork and group exercises are compulsory. Supervision is normally limited to the semester when the student was first registered on the course. Exceptions can be made if there are special grounds. (This rule applies to students starting their studies from 1 August 2016).

Assessment

The assessment of module 1 is normally based on written assignments. The assessment of module 2 is based on the execution of the degree project and activity at the seminars. The degree project is to be discussed and defended at a seminar. This seminar is part of the assessment. The assessment is also based on the students' critical review of another degree project. The assessment of module 3 is normally based on oral and written assignments. Other forms of assessment may be applied in modules 1 and 3, subject to a special agreement with the students.

Passed degree projects at the Faculties of Humanities and Theology can be registered in the LUP Student Papers database if the student so wishes. The student is responsible for uploading the passed degree project as a PDF file in LUP student papers.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.

Grades

Marking scale: Fail, Pass, Pass with distinction.

For a grade of Pass on the whole course, the student must have been awarded this grade on all modules. For a grade of Pass with Distinction on the whole course, the student must have been awarded this grade on the degree project and at least a grade of Pass on the other modules.

The grades awarded for module 3 are Pass or Fail.

Entry requirements

To be admitted to the course, students must have passed HOSA01 Historical Osteology: Zooarchaeology and HOSA03 Historical Osteology: Human Osteology and Bioarchaeology or the equivalent.
