Management control is about how organisations influence its members to implement the organization's strategies. The course introduces key concepts of management control such as planning (establishing goals and objectives), performance measurement (financial and non-financial), budgets and budgeting, tracking and responding to deviations, how to measure profitability/economic value and the role of controllers. The course consists of four parts:

- Introduction and the role of controllers.
- Strategic management accounting, management control systems and performance measurement.
- Planning and budgetary control systems.
- Accounting information for decision making.

Course design

The course is designed as a set of lectures covering key areas followed by case-assignments. Lectures give students an overview of relevant knowledge in the field. There are also scheduled "drop-ins" where students can work with exercises to each area of the course individually or in groups and ask questions and get help with solutions by the teachers of the course. Case assignments facilitate independent thought and complex assessment, integration of knowledge and deepened understanding. The case-assignments also require students to co-operate in teams as they are carried out in groups. The case-assignments are partly carried out during scheduled workshops where the teachers of the course are available to help students.
