A2E, Second cycle, contains degree project for Master of Arts/Master of Science (120 credits)

Learning outcomes

Knowledge and understanding

After completing the course the student is expected to be able to show:

- an in-depth knowledge of the particular subject chosen for the Master thesis and good understanding of the subjects significance within the general context of European business law
- an in-depth knowledge of the scientific and methodological foundations of European business law
- a good awareness of the current state of legal research and methodology in the discourse on the fundamental principles of EC/EU law.

Skills and abilities

To pass the examination the student shall show the ability:

- to critically and systematically assess and integrate knowledge from different sources of law
- to independently, critically and creatively identify and formulate legal problems and to systematize arguments and to analyze, compare and evaluate theoretical and practical problems within the context of European business law
- to plan and pursue qualified tasks within a given time frame.

Judgement and approach

To pass the examination the student shall demonstrate:

- an in-depth understanding of the role of fundamental principles within the European and national legal systems
- insights into the role played by fundamental principles of EC/EU law in the interaction between States and individuals/groups and between the EU and its Member States
- good understanding of the values enshrined in the fundamental principles of EC/EU law such as the principles of non-discrimination, subsidiarity and proportionality
- the ability to make an assessment regarding the societal aspects of European business law
- insights into the role played by European business law in the interaction between States and individuals/groups and between the EU and its Member States
- insight into the role of international and regional organizations in the process of norm creation and enforcement
- insights into the relative merits of regulation at an European/international level as opposed to regulation at national level.

Course content

The purpose of the course is to enable the students - under the direction of a supervisor - to deepen their knowledge of a selected topic on the fundamental principles of EC/EU law through the composition of a thesis at magisters level and participation in seminars. The course will, moreover, develop the students aptitude in legal argumentation, the skill to conduct independent research and the ability to apply relevant legal method. If the student has taken part in an internship programme, the student will also be able to demonstrate a good understanding of the connection and interplay between legal theory and the practical application of law.

Course design

Common instructions are given to all students admitted to the course in the form of seminars on general questions related to European business law as well as methodology and practical skills, attendance of which is compulsory.

A supervisor is assigned to every student. The student has a right to individual supervision during the term he or she is registered for the first time for the course. At the initiative of the student and after consultation with the supervisor and approval by the programme director, part of the research of the master thesis may be carried out within the framework of an internship at law firms, companies, national or international organs or non-governmental organizations.

Assessment

Examination is in the form of a public thesis defence seminar where the thesis is presented and defended. Each student must be an opponent at another thesis defence seminar. The thesis defence seminar and the opposition are compulsory elements of the examination.

The completed master thesis shall be submitted for publication in electronic form after the final examination.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.

Grades

Marking scale: Fail, Pass, Pass with credit, Pass with distinction.

Entry requirements

Passed courses from the first three terms of the programme amounting to 90 higher education credits, including the course JAEM01 Master Thesis I.
