- critically review, discuss and take a position on language norms and adopt a scholarly approach to language
- assess events and developments in Danish contemporary history based on earlier currents of ideas

Course content

The course provides students with an introduction to Danish grammar (morphology and syntax), phonetics, phonology and prosody, orthography, vocabulary, style, usage and history, in comparison with Swedish. Danish usage, language norms and language variation are analysed in a historical, social and cultural context. Fiction (novels and short texts) is an important component of the text study. Different forms of oral and written communication are addressed and the students have the opportunity to communicate in spoken and written Danish and provide feedback to fellow students on their communicative skills in Danish. Furthermore, the course deals with the main features of the social and cultural development of modern Denmark from the 1849 Constitution to a modern democracy and welfare state, and provides a sketch of the history of ideas background to the present-day public debate in Denmark. In addition, the construction and discussion of Danish national identity is interrogated. Is it possible to refer to a special Danish mentality and how is it different from a Swedish one?

The course consists of the following modules:

1. An Introduction to Danish, 7.5 credits
2. Spoken Danish, 7.5 credits
3. Written Danish, 7.5 credits
4. History, Society and Culture in Denmark, 7.5 credits

Course design

The teaching consists of lectures, exercises and seminars. It includes extensive proficiency training and continuous assessment within the three first modules, and a large part of the teaching is therefore compulsory.

Assessment

Module 1, An Introduction to Danish, is assessed on the basis of 3-5 assignments during the course, and a final written exam. Module 2, Oral Danish, is assessed partly continuously within the scope of teaching. i.e. through 4-5 home assignments and oral presentations at seminars, and partly through an oral exam at the end of the module. Module 3, Written Danish, is assessed on the basis of 4-5 assignments during the course and a final written exam. Module 4, History, Society and Culture in Denmark, is assessed on the basis of a final written exam.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.

Grades

Marking scale: Fail, Pass, Pass with distinction.

For a grade of Pass on the whole course, the student must have been awarded this grade on all modules. For a grade of Pass with Distinction on the whole course, the student must have been awarded this grade on at least 15 credits of the course.
