Course content

Today both private companies and public organizations often adopt flexible organizational solutions in response to a rapidly changing and globally interdependent world. This course provides knowledge needed to comprehend the diverse and typically multifaceted work- and organizational problems and solutions that may arise in an uncertain and flexible work life.

Subcourse 1: Stress, Health, and Well-being in a Changing Work Life (6 Credits)
This subcourse focuses on the exchanges between the workplace and its external environment and associated consequences. Changes in organisational structures, communication patterns, rules, standards, and individual demands may influence organisational and individual performance as well as health and well-being. Topics include the new world of work, theories of work-related stress, stress related health problems, health promotion and illness prevention.

Subcourse 2: Psychological Perspectives on Leadership (6 Credits)
This subcourse focuses on psychological perspectives on leadership in organisations. Theories and research on psychological aspects of leadership and potential implications are addressed and discussed. Topics may include creativity, innovation and teamwork.

Subcourse 3: Motivation and Achievement (3 Credits)
This subcourse focuses on motivation and performance in work- and organisational settings. Concepts, theories and research of motivation and performance achievement will be discussed and applied. In addition, psychological skills and strategies for performance enhancement will be addressed.

Course design

Teaching methods include a combination of lectures, seminars, case work and exercises designed to implement theoretical knowledge into praxis. Seminars, case work and exercises are based on active participation from students and unless there are valid reasons to the contrary participation is compulsory. Students who have been unable to participate in mandatory components due to circumstances beyond their control, such as accidents or sudden illness will be offered the opportunity to compensate for or re-take compulsory components. This also applies to students who have had to be absent because of duties as an elected student representative. It is the responsibility of the student to contact the course leader in the case of such absence.

Assessment

Assessment is based on three written reports for the three sub courses, and a written exam (all three sub courses). Three opportunities for examination are offered in conjunction with the course. Within a year of a major change or termination of the course, at least two further examination opportunities will be offered on the same course content. After that, students will be offered further examination opportunities but in accordance with the current course syllabus.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.

Grades

Marking scale: Fail, E, D, C, B, A.

The grades awarded for the written exam are A, B, C, D, E or Fail (A is the highest grade and E is the lowest passing grade). For the grade of E the student must show acceptable results. For the grade of D the student must show satisfactory results. For the grade of C the student must show good results. For the grade of B the student must show very good results. For the grade of A the student must show excellent results. For the grade of Fail the student has shown unacceptable results.

The grades awarded for the written reports is Pass or Fail. For the grade of Pass the student must show acceptable results. For the grade of Fail the student has shown unacceptable results.

In order to receive a grade of Pass (at least E) on the entire course, students must receive a grade of at least E on all subcourses and the grade of Pass on the written report and must have participated in compulsory course components.

At the start of the course students are informed about the learning outcomes stated in the syllabus and about the grading scale and how it is applied in the course.
