RHIB13, History of Religions: Level 2, 15 credits

Religions historia: Fortsättningskurs, 15 högskolepoäng
First Cycle / Grundnivå

Details of approval

The syllabus was approved by the pro-dean for first-cycle studies at the Faculties of Humanities and Theology on 2016-01-12 and was last revised on 2016-12-01. The revised syllabus applies from 2017-01-16, spring semester 2017.

General Information

The course is offered as a freestanding course. It can be selected as a specialisation course in the Bachelor’s programme in Religious Studies and Theology. It can be included in a first or second cycle degree.

Language of instruction: Swedish

Main field of studies

History of Religions

Religious Studies and Theology with specialization in History of Religions and Religious Behavioural Studies

Depth of study relative to the degree requirements

G1F, First cycle, has less than 60 credits in first-cycle course/s as entry requirements

Learning outcomes

On completion of the course, the students shall be able to

Knowledge and understanding

- account for some key basic theories, methods and phenomena of the anthropology of religion
- account for the role of symbols, cosmologies, myths and rites in both ceremonial and everyday life
- describe how a selected religious text has emerged and gained religious authority, and how it can be used in ideological and ritual contexts

This is a translation of the course syllabus approved in Swedish
• formulate an issue based on the subject of religion and text with a clear aim and question
• explain the characteristics of an academic paper in contrast to other genres/text types, such as journalistic features or opinion pieces

Competence and skills
• use field studies within the anthropology of religion to describe how religions are embedded within different cultural contexts
• reflect on and present the problem areas of field studies methodology
• produce a minor paper on the subject of religion and text
• select and assess academic texts of relevance to the assignment

Judgement and approach
• review and analyse issues of power, gender or ethnicity within the anthropology of religion
• distinguish between the application of a scholarly and a religious perspective on a religious text
• assess the significance of self-reflection for the study of the history of religions

Course content
The course starts by discussing the theories and methods of the anthropology of religion to address how what is termed religion in different cultural contexts can be studied and analysed. Accordingly, religious practice is considered in global as well as local environments. The study of religious life as it is documented through anthropological field studies is central to the course. Phenomena such as shamanism, witchcraft and possession are discussed with reference to case studies obtained through field studies and are thereby situated in cultural environments. The role of symbols, cosmologies, myths and rituals in both ceremonial and everyday life is also examined. Among the important questions posed are why people practise rites and how rites have been changed in the modern and individualised society.

In the second half of the course, students practise taking on an independent assignment that is to be presented in a minor paper. The aim of the course is to introduce and provide training in academic writing. The assignment is limited to an oral or written text of significance for the history of religion, chosen jointly with the examiner and studied closely. The text can be a thousand years old or produced in the present. Among the topics that can be addressed are the processes of canonisation, mediation, commentaries, scholarly and religious interpretative perspectives or ritual text use.

The course consists of the following modules:

1. Anthropology of Religion- Ritual, Myth, Symbol, 7.5 credits
2. Religion and Text, 7.5 credits

Course design
The teaching consists of lectures, seminars and supervision. Compulsory attendance is required at a seminar in which the students make oral presentations in groups or individually. Absence from this seminar is to be compensated for by a written assignment in accordance with the lecturer’s instructions.

This is a translation of the course syllabus approved in Swedish
Assessment

Module 1 is assessed on the basis of a final written home assignment.

Module 2 is assessed on the basis of a minor paper of approximately 40,000 characters with spaces, including a cover sheet, table of contents and bibliography, and a final defence seminar.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.

Grades

Marking scale: Fail, Pass, Pass with distinction.
For a grade of Pass on the whole course, the student must have been awarded at least this grade on both modules. For a grade of Pass with Distinction on the whole course, the student must have been awarded this grade on at least one of the modules and a grade of Pass on the other.

Entry requirements

To be admitted to the course, students must have 30 credits within the humanities, social sciences or law.

Further information

1. The course is offered at the Centre for Theology and Religious Studies, Lund University.
3. The modules are also offered as freestanding courses (RHIB36 and RHIB37).
4. The credits allocated for course content that in whole or in part is commensurate with another course can only be credited once for a degree. For further details see the current registration information and other relevant documentation.
Subcourses in RHIB13, History of Religions: Level 2

Applies from V16

1601   Anthropology of Religions - Ritual, Myth, Symbol, 7,5 hp
       Grading scale: Fail, Pass, Pass with distinction
1602   Religion and Text, 7,5 hp
       Grading scale: Fail, Pass, Pass with distinction

This is a translation of the course syllabus approved in Swedish