Course content

The course contains two sequential tutorial series of 10 credits each. The tutorial series are supervised by a selection of professors and for the assignment scientific competent teachers. The selection of tutors can change between the semesters. The tutorial series connects to the involved researchers research areas and can thus change from semester to semester. When applying for the course, the student also applies to a specific tutorial series.

Course design

A tutorial serial consists of a number of meetings between a smaller group of students and a selected researcher (tutor) at the faculty. The exact number of meetings is decided by the course director. The teaching consists of discussing the course literature and eventual written assignments handed in by the students. All teaching moments (tutorials) are mandatory

Assessment

Assessment and grading is based on the assignment that the tutor has given and is examined during the meetings in the small groups. Eventual supplementation to a passing grade will be done in accordance with instructions of the supervisor no later than during the semester following the course. Students can only get a certificate for examination elements they have passed.

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.
