Course content

The course is divided into four modules.

Module 1. The social and organisational conditions for the profession of teacher (7.5 credits)

This module applies a perspective of education history and profession theory to the compulsory and optional school types and to the teaching profession in relation to their political, economic and social context.

Module 2. Development, learning and didactics (7.5 credits)

This module introduces students to theories of development and learning as knowledge required to understand and explain the conditions for learning of adolescents and adults and to develop professional knowledge and skills to use in teaching.

3. Work placement 1 (7.5 credits)

The module consists of five weeks of coherent and supervised work placement. The placement is to be located in activities and a subject of relevance to the student. The student is guided in the future professional role by a work placement supervisor and follows the daily work of the supervisor. Focus is placed on the student's ability to establish a basis for developing a professional role as a teacher and an independent view of this role in dialogue with the supervisor and pupils. This means that the student starts to develop a didactic approach to teaching and the subject in dialogue with the teacher training lecturer.

4. Leadership in the classroom (7.5 credits)

The students are made aware of the significance of developing leadership in teaching that contributes to both individual and group learning. A part of this leadership is to observe and develop social relations that are of importance to teaching and learning. The module therefore focuses on theories of leadership, group dynamics, roles and communication.

Course design

The teaching consists of lectures, seminars, supervision in the professional role and other individual and group study.
