Course content

The course adopts an interdisciplinary perspective on diversity, equality and education. It enables the students to develop their ability to reflect on their own role in interaction with others from the perspectives of class, gender, ethnicity, religion or other belief, transgender identity or expression, sexual orientation, age and disability. An essential part of the course is concerned with the ability to take a critical position on the field of special educational needs.

Course design

The teaching consists of lectures, independent study and supervised seminars including group exercises. The conditions for the development, learning and socialisation of pupils are analysed in relation to different perspectives and practices. Diversity issues linked to schools, education and special educational needs are addressed throughout the course. The course consists of seminars.

Assessment

The assessment is based on the defence of written assignments at seminars and written exams.

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.

Grades

Marking scale: Fail, Pass, Pass with distinction.
