Learning outcomes

On completion of the course, the students shall be able to

Knowledge and understanding

- provide an advanced account of selected parts of English linguistics,
- provide a basic account of theory of knowledge and research methodology in English linguistics and contrast different research methods,
- account for current research issues in English linguistics and, at a basic level, relate these questions to the subject in general,

Competence and skills

- use language that is adapted to the situation with words and phrases of relevance to the genre and communication situation,
- independently search for and use information on English linguistics in libraries and databases,

- carry out a study of linguistic data using linguistic concepts and methods,
- apply correct reference and citation techniques as they are used in linguistic texts,

Judgement and approach

- critically review and evaluate different types of sources,
- address class, gender and ethnicity in texts and language,
- identify their need for further knowledge to improve their skills in English.

Course content

The course covers method and theory in English linguistics. By studying academic texts and writing academic texts themselves, students develop their academic writing skills.

Course design

The teaching consists of seminars.

Assessment

Assessment of the course is based on a final individual written assignment (paper) and 1-2 minor written or oral assignments, individually or in groups. The final written assignment is worth the most.

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.

Grades

Marking scale: Fail, Pass, Pass with distinction.

For the grade of Pass on the course, students must have been awarded at least the grade of Pass on all assessed components. For the grade of Pass with Distinction on the course, students must also have been awarded the grade of Pass with Distinction on the final written assignment.

Entry requirements

English: Level 2 or the equivalent.

Further information
