Course content

The overall intended course learning outcome is to enable students to acquire insight into and familiarity with basic concepts and issues of business administration. Students are to acquire a solid foundation for further studies in the subject, manifested in sound knowledge of basic models and concepts within organisations, marketing, financial and management accounting, innovation and entrepreneurship. The course provides students with a general overview of the subject of business administration. It is structured around five different components:

- Organisation deals with the structure, culture, governance, management and change of organisations. A special focus is placed on the significance of leadership and the exercise of leadership.
- Marketing deals with the development of marketing strategies, market analyses and the creation of profitable relations with customers.
- Financial management deals with the governance of organisations by means of result planning, financial and non-financial calculations, budgeting, profitability assessments and deviation analyses. Emphasis is also placed on enabling understanding of how financial management approaches different decision making situations and the role of financial management in various types of activities.
- External accounting and accounts analysis deals with basic concepts, principles of double accounting, closing of accounts, the compilation and analysis of accounts documents, accounting policies and the analysis of financial information. Furthermore, the rules and regulations of accounting are introduced. The component aims to familiarise students with both the principles and practice of producing and analysing accounts information.
- The company's role in society deals with the role of companies from a broad community perspective, focusing how organisations affect different societal processes through entrepreneurship, innovation and renewal. Ethical issues concerning enterprise, sustainability and finance are linked to the different parts of an organisation.

Course design

The teaching consists of lectures, classes, group exercises and drafting of reports of different kinds.

The assessment is made individually and in groups and is based on written exams, written assignments, oral presentations and performance in compulsory components.

Assessment

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.
