Course content

Throughout the course aims to clarify the fundamental role of norms and values within these and other areas, both on an individual and societal level. The focus is on enabling students to increase their understanding of what is distinctive about this type of issues. The course also contains a themed sub-course, devoted to a special study of some issue in practical philosophy, usually tied to the instructor's own research. In addition, there is an essay subcourse, including oral opposition and defense, developing students' ability to argue philosophically as well as their ability to express themselves philosophically, orally and in writing.

The course contains the following subcourses:

1. Advanced Ethics, 7,5 credits
2. Classical Works in Ethics, 6, credits
3. Modern Political Philosophy, 6 credits
4. Paper, 4,5 credits
5. Theme Course, 6 credits

Subcourse 2: examination by invigilated exam

Subcourse 3: examination by a written assignment

Subcourse 5: examination generally by written assignments or take-home exam, depending on course content (which varies from term to term). An invigilated exam is used if the course is of a technical character.

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.

Grades

Marking scale: Fail, E, D, C, B, A.

The overall course grade is determined as follows:

- (1) Each letter grader corresponds to a numerical grade: 5 to A, 4 to B, 3 to C, 2 to B, 1 to E and 0 to U.
- (2) The numerical grade for each subcourse is multiplied with the number of credits in that subcourse.
- (3) The products are summed and the sum divided by 30 (=the total number of credits in the course).
- (4) This weighted average determines the overall course grade. $x=4,50-5,00$ yields the grade A; $x=3,50-4,49$ yields the grade B; $x=2,50-3,49$ yields the grade C; $x=1,50-2,49$ yields the grade D; $x=0-1,49$ yields the grade E.

Entry requirements

To be eligible for the course requires the successful completion of FPRA12, or the equivalent.
