- be able to formulate relevant criticism of both individual philosophical arguments and complete theories.

Course content

The course introduces students to the history of analytical and theoretical philosophy and their basic methods, and to a certain extent specialises in issues relating to the philosophy of science and the philosophy of mind. Emphasis is placed on the development of the students' ability to understand and develop a critical attitude to philosophical texts.

The course consists of the following sub-courses:

1. A Survey of the History of Philosophy, 7.5 credits,
2. Philosophical Method, 6 credits,
3. Philosophy from 1900, 6 credits,
4. The Philosophy of Science, 6 credits,
5. The Philosophy of Mind, 4.5 credits.

Course design

Teaching consists of lectures, text and essay seminars, and practical exercises. The last module contains a mandatory discussion seminar. If a student is unable to attend the seminar they can complete a take home examination instead.

Assessment

Module 1: Invigilated written examination

Module 2: Invigilated written examination

Module 3: Invigilated written examination

Module 4: Invigilated written examination

Module 5: Written unsupervised take-home examination

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.
