General Information

The course Intellectual Property and Trade is an advanced course which focuses on the regulation and enforcement of intellectual property rights, especially in the WTO context via the TRIPS agreement and in free trade agreements.

The course is an optional course for the students achieving a Master of European and International Trade Law. It may also be studied as a single subject course.

Language of instruction: English

Main field of studies

European and International Trade Law

Depth of study relative to the degree requirements

A1N, Second cycle, has only first-cycle course/s as entry requirements

Learning outcomes

The students will be trained as reflective practitioners in taking an active part in developing a sustainable society building on innovative thinking. This course will particularly enable the students to adopt informed decisions regarding legal aspects of intellectual property rights and trade and be able to convert regulatory constraints into opportunities. It aims at providing students with knowledge and understanding in European and international intellectual property law and of the enforcement mechanisms in place.

A passing grade on the course will be awarded to students who:

Knowledge and understanding

- demonstrate knowledge and understanding in the fields of European and international intellectual property law; and
- demonstrate methodological knowledge in European and international intellectual property law.

Competence and skills

- demonstrate an ability to analyse and apply the law in the field of European and international intellectual property law;
- demonstrate an ability to independently identify and formulate legal challenges related to European and international intellectual property law; and
- demonstrate an ability to work individually as well as in groups with students from different cultures in order to solve practical problems.

Judgement and approach

- demonstrate an ability to make assessments in the fields of European and international intellectual property law, taking into account relevant scientific, social and ethical aspects; and
- demonstrate an ability to identify their need of further knowledge and to take responsibility for developing their knowledge.

Course content

The course covers the European and international dimension of intellectual property rights. International trade evolves rapidly and becomes increasingly complex, not the least as regards intellectual property rights. The course covers topics such as the importance of protection and enforcement of intellectual property in trade, the regulation of intellectual property protection in the WTO context via the TRIPS agreement, and regulation of intellectual property in free trade agreements.

Course design

Teaching is structured in lectures and seminars, where students' participation is compulsory.

Assessment

The course requires active participation from the students during lectures, seminars and group works. It also requires individual preparation (self-study).

Examination is based on individual as well as group performance. The exam is an individual written exam. The individual performance also includes an individual paper (essay). Group performances and other individual performances are case solving activities and can include written short assignment/s and/or oral presentation/s.

In order to pass, students are required to meet the 80% active attendance requirement in the lectures and in the seminars.

For the examination, special consideration is given to the students' ability to fulfill the submitted tasks within the set time.

The number of occasions that a student can try to complete the examination for the approved result on the course is limited to five occasions.

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.
