- present, discuss and analyse in writing different positions and arguments in good Swedish or English,
- use a system of referencing and bibliographies accepted within Jewish Studies,
- perform a critical review of another student's degree project,

Judgement and approach

- make assessments informed by relevant disciplinary, societal and ethical aspects within the field of religious studies,
- assess the role of knowledge within religious studies in society and the responsibility of people for how it is used,
- assess and specify their need of further knowledge in religious studies.

Course content

In the course, the student is to produce a Bachelor's degree project. The student chooses the specialisation of the project in consultation with the supervisor. The seminars in the course deal with different aspects of academic writing and how the different parts of the thesis can be designed.

Course design

The teaching consists of supervision and 8-10 compulsory seminars. Supervision is normally limited to the semester when the student was first registered on the course. Exceptions can be made if there are special grounds. If a student is absent from a seminar, a written make up assignment has to be submitted.

Assessment

The assessment is based on the degree project, the student's defence of their degree project at a seminar and critical review of a fellow student's degree project. If there is no degree project to critically review at the time of assessment, the examiner can take a decision to allow the student to produce a written critical review rather than an oral one.

Passed degree projects at the Faculties of Humanities and Theology can be registered in the LUP Student Papers database if the student so wishes. The student is responsible for uploading the passed degree project as a PDF file in LUP student papers.

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.
