A1N, Second cycle, has only first-cycle course/s as entry requirements

Learning outcomes

On completion of the course, the students shall be able to

Knowledge and understanding

- give an account of both general and in-depth knowledge of contemporary English-speaking literature
- give an informed account of contemporary literary-critical theories and their application in the reading of literary texts
- give an account of the relation between literary works and the multifaceted cultural and historical contexts from which they derive and to which they relate

Competence and skills

- formulate, adhere to and support analyses of literary texts by means of historical information and theoretical approaches
- present analyses of literary texts and their contexts in good academic English

Judgement and approach

- using a critical approach, form an opinion on the different theoretical positions in the literary-critical field
- relate to the central importance of the form of presentation for different ways to understand and describe reality
- identify and evaluate the relation between different discourses and genres

Course content

The course offers a representative overview of influential contemporary English-speaking literature from a broad selection of genres (prose, lyric poetry, drama) and cultural and historical contexts. It examines the relation between these works and the different discourses (gender, ethnicity, class, nationality etc) in which they arise and concurrently transform. The course also covers key positions in contemporary literary-critical theories and their application in the reading and interpretation of literary texts.

Course design

The course is taught in the form of seminars.

Assessment

The assessment is based on one written assignment.

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.

Grades

Marking scale: Fail, Pass, Pass with distinction.

Entry requirements

Admission to the course requires completion of the Level 3 (first cycle) course in English (ENGK01) with literary-critical specialisation or equivalent.
