- analyse music in a fundamental theoretical way based on both scores and instrumental examples
- enliven the study field for others using correct language, both orally and in writing

Judgement and approach

- use a fundamental scholarly and critical approach to assess and contextualise music

Course content

The first module provides students with basic knowledge of the theories and methods of musicology including analyses and practical exercises. The second module provides a general problematised presentation of the main features of the music history of the western world from the late 19th century to the early 21st century. The objects of study consist of required reading, instrumental music, film music and sheet music. Music is discussed in relation to the cultural context in which the music was created, to tradition, technology and music composers, as well as from starting points related to power relations and diversity such as gender and ethnicity. The module also includes practical exercises in describing, interpreting and expressing observations orally and in writing. Issues concerning experience, description and interpretation are emphasised. During the third module, the student will practise academic writing. The module provides basic knowledge and approaches to academic writing as a craft and phenomenon. The course includes teaching and practice in information retrieval.

The course consists of the following modules:

1. Methods and Theories I, (8 credits)
2. The Long 1900s, (20 credits)
3. Academic Writing, (2 credits)

Course design

The teaching consists of teacher-led lessons, 3–5 seminars and approximately 5 independent written assignments distributed over all 3 modules. Module 2 also includes 1–2 group assignments.

All group work, seminars and independent assignments are compulsory. In addition, attendance at 80% of all teaching sessions is compulsory. Absence can be compensated for in accordance with the lecturer's instructions.

Assessment

The assessment of module 1 is based on a written invigilated exam.

The assessment of module 2 is based on 2–4 short written assignments of approximately 3–4 pages each, and 1 major written assignment (take-home exam) of approximately 6–8 pages.

The assessment of module 3 is based on 1–2 written assignments (take-home exams).

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.

Grades

Grading scale includes the grades: Fail, Pass, Pass with distinction

For a grade of Pass for the whole course, the student must have been awarded at least this grade for all modules. For a grade of Pass with Distinction for the whole course, the student must also have been awarded this grade for at least 22 of the course credits.
