Some components may be in English.

Main field of studies

Psychology

Depth of study relative to the degree requirements

AXX, Second cycle, in-depth level of the course cannot be classified

Learning outcomes

The course aims to provide students with knowledge of evident relevance to their future practice as psychologists in areas where they have been found in need of complementary studies in order to attain the knowledge and skills equivalent to a Swedish degree of Master of Science in Psychology, and which are not covered by other courses within the course package "Bridging programme for international graduates in Psychology, 90 credits". On completion of the course, the students are generally to

Knowledge and understanding

- demonstrate specialised knowledge of key concepts, theories and research findings in the relevant fields

Competence and skills

- demonstrate a specialised ability to convert knowledge and theories in the relevant fields into professional practice

Judgement and approach

- demonstrate the ability to identify, reflect on and apply a professional and ethical approach in relation to the themes and assignments included in the course

Course content

The course content is determined by the individual student's need for complementary studies.

Component 1 (5 credits)

Component 2 (5 credits)

Course design

The form of teaching varies, depending on the student's need for complementary studies. Parts of the course are integrated with courses on the MSc programme in Psychology, in which case the rules on attendance, execution and assessment specified in the relevant course syllabi apply. For the parts of the course that are not integrated with courses on the MSc programme in Psychology, the form of teaching is determined individually, based on the student's need for further studies.

Assessment

The components that are integrated with courses on the MSc programme in Psychology are assessed in accordance with the design of the relevant course. For all other components, the assessment is based on written assignments and oral exams.

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.

Grades

Marking scale: Fail, Pass.

The grades awarded are Pass or Fail. For the grade of Pass, the student must attain the learning outcomes specified for the components the student has been found needing to complement.

Entry requirements

To be admitted to the course, the student must be admitted to the course package "Bridging programme for international graduates in Psychology, 90 credits". For admission to the course block, the following requirements apply:

Entry requirements:

- An international degree in Psychology which makes the student qualified for work as a psychologist in the country issuing the degree or, if the profession is not regulated in the country of issue, which includes at least four years of study and results in a second-cycle degree in psychology (e.g. Master (120 credits) in Psychology with clinical specialisation). The degree is to include the core areas of psychology such as cognition, learning and developmental psychology. It must also include research methodology and psychopathology/psychiatry or the equivalent (e.g. mental health). Furthermore, the degree is to include practical elements or the applicant must have documented professional experience as a psychologist.
- Swedish 3 or Swedish as a Second Language 3
- English 6 or the equivalent

Selection: The selection takes place through an overall assessment of the applicant's qualifications, such as previous studies and relevant professional or vocational experience.
