It can be included in a first or second cycle degree.

Main field of studies

History of Religions

Depth of study relative to the degree requirements

G1N, First cycle, has only upper-secondary level entry requirements

Learning outcomes

On completion of the course, the students shall be able to

Knowledge and understanding

- account for basic features of Greek and Roman religion and Old Norse religion
- provide a general account of the mutual interaction and impact of the different religious traditions
- exemplify how these traditions are used as identity markers and in different present-day manifestations of culture, such as fiction, film and art

Competence and skills

- apply methods of source criticism in a basic manner
- independently formulate and process simple issues concerning the study of ancient religions and their significance in the present

Judgement and approach

- judge the documentary value of different types of sources that are used to study classical and ancient religions

Course content

The course deals with the religions of Antiquity and pre-Christian Europe. The focus is mainly placed on old Greek, Roman and Norse religion. Key concepts and religious practices are addressed, and the present-day significance of the traditions as identity markers and in fiction, film, art or other manifestations of culture is discussed.

Course design

The teaching consists of lectures and seminars.

Assessment

The course is assessed on the basis of a research assignment and a final written exam.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.

Grades
