Course content

The student is to write an independent degree project in a delimited area of the field of service management. The degree project is to rest on a scholarly foundation and meet the requirements of fundamental theoretical and methodological understanding.

Course design

The teaching consists of supervision and a final seminar including compulsory critical review of a fellow students degree project.

A supervisor is appointed for each student before the start of the course. The supervisor provides advice and views on the design of the study. However, the course is also a form of independent study and the student is responsible for the completion of his or her project. The hours for supervision are restricted to the semester for which the student was initially registered. Exceptions can be made if there are valid reasons.

The degree project is to be submitted electronically in accordance with the departments instructions for open access publication in a database on a server owned by Lund University. In exceptional cases and on application to the head of department, students may be exempted from the obligation to publish.

Assessment

The assessment is mainly based on the quality of the finished degree project, but also to some extent on the students defence of the project and critical review of a fellow students project.

The examination is in the form of a written degree project.

An examiner who has not acted as supervisor of the degree project is appointed for the assessment of the degree project, the defence and the critical review.

Three opportunities for examination are offered in conjunction with the course: a first examination and two re-examinations. Within a year of the end of the course, two further re-examinations on the same course content are offered. After this, further re-examination opportunities are offered but in accordance with the current course syllabus.
