Course content

The course consists of an individual assignment in the subject of Swedish as a Second Language and teaching methodology of clear relevance to the future profession as a teacher, and defence of the independent work and critical review of another independent project. The aim of the course is to provide students with specialised understanding of the didactic issues and professionally related problems that are specific to the subject of Swedish as a Second Language, and a specialised ability to execute a research study, the implementation and results of which shall provide the student with an understanding of the professional tradition of the subject and its theoretical and methodological aspects.

In connection with the degree project, the student is to seek, identify and select relevant literature, when necessary in consultation with the supervisor.

Course design

The course consists of the student's independent execution of a degree project with the support of a supervisor. During the course, the independent project will be discussed at individual supervision sessions and supervision seminars, and finally discussed at a compulsory public seminar. The student is expected to participate actively in all supervision activities and seminars that are organised.

Supervision is limited to thirty hours in the semester in which the student is first enrolled in the course, unless special circumstances apply.

Assessment

The examination of the course is by the students' presentation and defence of their independent projects at a public seminar, and their critical review of another independent project. At the seminar, the independent project and the critical review are assessed by a specially appointed examiner.

Degree projects awarded a grade of Pass at the Faculties of Humanities and Theology can be registered in the LUP Student Papers database if the student so wishes. The student is responsible for ensuring that the version of the degree project that has been assessed and approved is the one uploaded to LUP Student Papers (in PDF format).

The examiner, in consultation with Disability Support Services, may deviate from the regular form of examination in order to provide a permanently disabled student with a form of examination equivalent to that of a student without a disability.

Subcourses that are part of this course can be found in an appendix at the end of this document.

Grades

Marking scale: Fail, Pass, Pass with distinction.

The grade on the independent project decides the grade on the whole course in accordance with the relevant grading criteria.

Entry requirements

Admission to the course requires 90 passed credits in the subject of Swedish as a Second Language with didactic specialisation and 45 credits in educational science core courses or an equivalent discipline.
